Introduction

This is a call to all scientists and researchers in the fields of Cymatics, Sound Healing, DNA Activation, Oncology, Bioacoustics and Water Therapy & Purification, to take part in a study of a newly discovered method for the immediate impact of sound on health using water as a conductor for vibration. The basis of this practice is a synthesis of conclusions garnered from extensive research of:

- Cymatics
- Vibrational medicine
- Water purification techniques using sound
- Brainwave science
- Mathematics
- Sacred geometry
- DNA research and the pineal gland research (which are known to be encompassed by water and resonant to the surrounding environment)
- Clear-quartz crystal properties of receiving, storing, transmitting and amplifying frequencies and information.
- The science of frequencies and their potential to specifically heal all sorts of disease as shown by Royal Raymond Rife and Robert C. Beck, as well as Dr. Masaru Emoto's photographs of the Solfeggio frequencies' impact on the molecular structure of water provide the foundation for this discovery.

Background

In June, 2009, Shai Danon and Amiti Media began experimenting with and documenting the implementation of a newly discovered technique they created after exploring the application of the frequency of 528hz on water.

Considering the known impact of frequency on the molecular composition of cells, they easily discerned that directing pure tone vibrations to a mass quantity of cells would have an allover physiological impact that could alter molecular structure, restoring it to its pure, healthy, unadulterated state. Emoto's research on the power of sound vibration and prayer made it evident that, since human cells are made of at least 70% water, applying the technique to the physical body, could restore body health to the recipient of treatment.

Amiti and Shai combined three aspects of science into one technique: Accurate sound waves to energy centers of the body, Water - as the best known conductor, and Quartz Crystal - as the best naturally transmitting amplifier.

For Shai Danon, 38, a musician with 12 years experience playing Tabla, influenced by both Western music and Eastern modalities, meeting Amiti, 27, was a turning point. Shai had studied and researched fields of science that led him to reconsider the effects of sound in everyday life. Amiti, an elementary school teacher and artistic videographer who had been exploring the world of sound healing with the properties of crystals for six years prior, a collaboration between the two began with the LIVE H2O worldwide event that took place on June 21st, 2009. Using Jonathan Goldman's Holy Harmony tuning forks, and tuning clear quartz crystal bowls accurately to the different frequencies of the solfeggio scale, the two facilitated a musical healing event in the Old City of Jerusalem in conjunction with the 3rd Jerusalem Hug, which unites Christians, Jews, Muslims and more, in a collective prayer for peace. This event was broadcasted live via the internet as part of a global initiative to purify the world's water using the healing power of prayer and sound.

The pinnacle of their early experiences together occurred in the Sea of Galilee, when they played the tuned solfeggio crystal bowls for a large amount of people standing in water while simultaneously singing and over toning the notes. People were deeply moved, and even a horse that was bathing over 100 meters away heard the sound, turned and walked through the water, entering their circle. The horse seemed relaxed and at ease. The scenario was miraculous.

The impact of this event upon the participants led Amiti and Shai to develop a therapy technique in water by which they approach the locations in a person's body with crystal bowl vibrations, which correlate with the correct energy centers. As the vibrations influence the water of the pool, they also influence the person in the pool receiving the treatment, as performed in the field of cymatics. Recipients of the treatment experience transformative effects, which reportedly last for several days after the treatment.

Subsequently, after word of this new technique began to spread, Shai and Amit were approached by hydrotherapists from throughout Israel. They shared their findings and began to collaborate, performing treatments on a wider scale. At the time of this writing, after a period of roughly eight months, over 300 people have been treated. All have reported powerful shifts in their state of mind and overall physical feeling. For example, a woman who was afraid of water described being completely transformed by the experience. She felt safe and tranguil in the presence of the healing sounds in water after not being in a pool of water for over twenty years. A man with a foot injury, of which Amit and Shai didn't know of, reported that his foot began vibrating intensely underwater when the bowl tuned to 528hz was being played. He did not have the same experience with the other frequencies. Others experienced deep emotional release through crying and laughter, and the release of physical tension, as well as reports of visual effects with closed eyes, including the appearance of the DNA structure and bright colored lights moving in sequence with the sound. After a recent session, a general medicine practitioner asked to learn from the innovators of the technique.

It is important to note that the field of Hydrotherapy and various new water healing techniques are very effective in and of themselves for treating many different forms of medical conditions. Techniques such as Watsu, Jahara, Water Dance, Hydrotherapy for the disabled and communing with dolphins have been gaining momentum worldwide over the past several years, and throughout Israel in particular. Working with over 30 various hydrotherapists, they all acknowledge the profound effect these specific sounds add to their patient's recovery.

Another epic transformative point occurred at the World Water Festival in Eilat in February, 2010. Amiti's instinct was to arrive early to meet the dolphins with the floating crystal bowls, to see how they would respond to these frequencies underwater. From the underwater videos, it is clear that the dolphins enjoyed the experience and were not bothered but rather curious and open to recieve the vibrations and sing back. This was an important acknowlegdement from the "masters of sound." At the festival, which hosted a majority of expert water therapists from throughout the world, this Crystal Crew held workshops and presentations, which tremendously impacted the overall atmosphere and consciousness of the festival. It culminated in a final session in a therapeutic seawater pool where more than 70 people circled and toned together in the water with the frequency of 528hz, naturally escalating from a meditative state into unrestricted waves of spontaneous laughter, joy and dance.

Statement of Intent

On April 1, 2010 I experienced my first treatment. My personal experience included feeling the vibration intensely throughout my stomach, where I have a history of digestive weakness. Also, without it being suggested, I saw brightly colored swirls of light and the DNA structure while my eyes were closed and the bowls were being played around me. Afterwards, as I layed in the pool being held gently by a water healer, I felt the distinct sense of deep relaxation and a return to the womb. My mind was calm and clear, my body floating at ease. I had a profound sense of being reborn. Overall, I can say that the professionalism and accuracy of the treatment was instrumental in facilitating this experience. I felt safe and cared for. This experience was the inspiration for me to publish this document and create greater awareness of this technique. It also prompted me to engage the practitioners in a process of research development to uncover groundbreaking scientific data that can demonstrate the physical, emotional and spiritual impacts of its implementation.

Through my research over the internet of similar work in applied cymatics, I learned that these men are the only ones practicing this type of therapy. The developers are currently oriented towards partnering with scientists and doctors to facilitate this research in order to have it recognized as a valid therapeutic technique. It would be of great benefit to anyone in the field of applied cymatics to conduct research on the scientific effects of this application.

A new and exiting website has been opened by Amiti media and Shai Danon, in israel, in hebrew. To my knowledge, this is the only site in israel, that presents and shares this kind of information on all of the subjects mentioned above. This website serves as a main platform of cooperation and co-creation for groups and individuals who share the same vision and raising awareness regarding water, frequency work and cymatics.
